THERE is some talk of starting a bank at Santa Fé Springs.

DURING the week ending October 15th, 182 business failures occurred in the United States and 24 in Canada. None in California.

THE San Bernardino Courier reports the total assessed property valuation of that county to be $29,942,330; against which there are bonds outstanding to the amount of $19,987,15, payable as follows: In 1888, $4000; in 1890, $6000, and in 1898, $9987.15.

MR. DAVID BERG of Indianapolis publishes a communication in the News that that city, in which the Southern California boom is held up as a depopulation bugaboo. In regard to Southern California, many of our eastern critics seem to be wool-gathering. Some of them assert that the bottom is dropping out of things, while others ingenuously affirm that there is danger of depopulating certain sections of the effect and ice-cream East.

IT is the talk of the newspapers that President Cleveland made his best and most original speeches in Kansas City. Of course. How could it be otherwise?—[Kansas City Star.]

It could not be otherwise. The blamed city being situated in two States, Great Denver was under the necessity of splitting himself, so to speak, in order that the same speech might tickle the pendant ears of the Kansas newspapers and fill at the same time the vast vacuity of Missouri Democracy.

THE struggle to secure the branch soldiers' home goes on. We hope to see the home located in Southern California. If there is any force in the argument favoring a central location, then the claims of Los Angeles county are incontrovertible. Los Angeles, Anaheim and Santa Fé Springs have bid for the prize. Other localities, however, are bidding against them. San Diego is rowing her boat in this matter with characteristic pluck and forwardness, and if Los Angeles county desires to win she must bid stronger than she has yet done.

KEARNEY, the sand-lout, addressed a meeting of nincompoops in New York a few evenings since. During Kearney's harangue one Wong, a Chinese, had the courage to rise in the meeting and propound some questions. As is usual with him, the sand-lout smirked the Mongol's questions, and the blind bigots who made up his audience hooted the man down. What a parody on American intelligence and good-hood! An exhibition of hog-headed cowardice that one would not expect to find among the Kalmucks or Tartars. Can such creatures be Americans?

THE San Francisco Examiner says that failure to convict Morrow, the late insurance jury-buoy, will be looked upon in a different light from that in which an ordinary verdict of acquittal would be regarded.

THE jury will be looked upon, simply, as a proof of jury-tampering and judicial corruption. When Buckley, the late streets-a self-admitted jobber, was the subject of the Supreme Court's decision, the Examiner mourned. Whose ox was injured? The argument lies in the eye of the beholder, said Capt. Outlie.

The Sacramento Record-Union of the 30th contains a list of Democratic appointees who have been acting on the part of the State, and who, it is alleged, have never qualified as public officers.

The list contains fifty-seven names, and among them appears such stalwart Democratic cognomens as J. West Martin of Oakland, John P. Irish of the San Francisco Alta, Prison Director John Boggs of Colusa, Senator Caminetti of Amador, John S. Hager, collector of the Port of San Francisco; ex-Assemblyman J. V. Coleman, ex-Senator L. W. Buck and Clara Foltz—the effervescent Clara. All these people acting without law or license is a spectacle sufficiently Democratic to suit the veriest Simon Tappertit of irresponsible reform. It is difficult to believe, however, that the case against these officials can be made out.

The American Cardinal—His Reception.

Cardinal Gibbons, the most eminent American connected with the Roman Catholic hierarchy, will arrive in Los Angeles today. His reception here will be of a dual character. Of course his own particular flock will receive him as their ecclesiastical head. This ceremony will take place in the Cathedral, and is something pertaining solely to our Catholic fellow-citizens.

The public reception, which takes place in Hazard's Pavilion tonight, is based upon wholly different grounds. The Cardinal is an exceptional man. He is reputed to be a gentleman of profound erudition, and, aside from the fixed lines of his church and creed, one of broad and liberal views. It goes without saying that Cardinal Gibbons is the most perfect type of level-headed American manhood within the folds of American Roman Catholicism, and as such, he is to be honored with a public reception. Of course, a public reception means a non-sectarian one. Any attempt to give it any other complexion would be as offensive as it would be futile.

We assume that no such attempt will be made, and that the true purpose of the management is in good faith to do this eminent personage such honor as he is fairly entitled to receive, as a man, a scholar, and an American citizen, at the hands of his fellows, without regard to sect or religion.

Give Justice a Chance.

The jury in the Morrow boodle case has disagreed. That such a denouement was expected we cannot say. We can say, however, that THE TIMES doubted from the outset the possibility of bringing the jury jobbers to justice in the courts of San Francisco.

With millions of money, the bosses, the boss machinery and the hidden springs of power that maintain the same, on the side of the boodlers, how can Justice be expected to raise her sword?

The ancients represented Justice as a blind female bearing a pair of scales and a naked sword. But that symbolism does not apply to San Francisco. In fact, it seems to have remained with the ancients.

Justice in San Francisco is not a female, it isn't blind, nor does it carry a sword or scales. It is masculine, bawdy and bear-eyed, and carries a sack and a memorandum book.

The Commonwealth of California can no longer afford to be stigmatized by this spectacle. The judicial Frankenstein that has sprouted and grown from the sands of Yerba Buena must be destroyed. It should no longer be permitted to straddle the neck of the Commonwealth.

Now is a good time to inaugurate the work of destruction. Victory for the jury-fixers is victory for bossism, and can only result in strengthening the Sinbad grip with which the San Francisco judicial Frankenstein clings to the neck of our Commonwealth.

If the jury-corrupters are guilty they should be convicted, and, if popular opinion has already arrived at the conclusion that conviction cannot be obtained in the courts of the Bay City, a change of venue should be had. Give Justice a chance.

Gladstone and Orangism.

In reply to the address presented him by the Irish residents of Nottingham, Eng., Gladstone took occasion to say that with the establishment of home rule the discord between the Catholics and Protestants of Ireland would cease.

This remark proves the wisdom of the "Grand Old Man." It also proves him to be thoroughly familiar with Irish affairs, and the spurs and goads that keep the Irish people in a chronic state of headless disension.

Few people outside of Ireland understand and estimate aright the Orange-so-called religious—disturbances. These disturbances cover a period of above 200 years, and they are political, not religious.

After the defeat of James and the accession of the Hollander, William of Orange, to the throne of the Stuarts, the Williamite soldiers who remained in Ireland, and who were "planted" in Ulster, formed the Orange Association. While members of the Orange Association must not be Catholic, they may be anything else—Turk, Jew, infidel or heathen. The keystone of Orangism is an oath which binds its members to support and maintain with life, limb and property, the monarchy of Great Britain and Ireland. This oath contains a special clause having for its object the exclusion of Roman Catholics from all departments of the public service.

It is this clause that gives an apparent religious cast to the annual Orange rioting that disgraces the North of Ireland, although, as may be readily perceived, the impulse is entirely political. Hence the wisdom of Mr. Gladstone's answer referred to above. With the establishment of local government in Ireland Orangism would die of inanition.

Aside from the politicians the Protestants of Ireland are not identified with Orangism, and its most bitter opponents have ever been and are still gentlemen of the Protestant persuasion, among whom may be named the Dean Swift, Sir John Barrington, Curran, Gratian, Tone and the immortal Emmett. And to whom must now be added Gladstone, Parnell, Labouchere, Biggar and many other Protestant gentlemen of prominence.

What the Ku-Klux Klan was to the Southern States before the full reestablishment of local self-government, so is Orangism to Ireland—a relic of the chaotic period, a descendant of military bravado coupled with political bigotry, and the bravado and the bigotry are both 200 years behind the times. Orangism must go. The wisdom of the "Grand Old Man" is prophetic.

Sad Times Ahead.

(Detroit Free Press.)
 A farmer with a black eye, skinned nose and two or three loose teeth was telling a policeman at the market yesterday how it all happened.

"It was yesterday," he said, "and I wanted to get some potatoes ready for market. Along came two tramps and asked for a bite to eat."

"Gents," says I, "how would you like to turn to and dig potatoes for $1 a day and found?"

"I am on my way to me mother's funeral and can't stop," says one.

"And I have got to be in town by noon to see about the Belle Isle bridge," says the other.

"With that I told 'em to be off or I'd help 'em to go, and what d'ye s'pose they did?"

"Laughed at you?"

"Aye, sir, and reflected on the build of my legs and the baldness of my head! Insulted me, sir—I, an American citizen, on my own land!"

"Then what?"

"Then I fell upon 'em."

"And they fell back?"

"They did, sir; and in two minutes I was a licked man. Think of it, sir! What can this country be coming to? Why, sir, when a tramp begins to fight back, who of our wisest statesmen can tell when it will end? I predict, sir, I predict reverse and ruin."

"Excuse me, madam, but those potatoes are worth $1 a bushel. Yes, ma'am, same brand all the way down to the bottom."

A Criticism of Munkacsky's Christ.

(Omaha World.)
 Munkacsky's "Christ Before Pilate" is not the representation of Divinity. The face of the Savior might belong to the Chicago Anarchists. It is that of a rough but earnest crank, without tenderness, sweetness or refinement. There is no true, fair picture of Christ yet made—at least, I have never seen one.

All Christians and other than Munkacsky's are so gentle as to seem effeminate, with their soft brown eyes and yielding chins. Now, the man who suffered the greatest martyrdom of history was not weak. He had fought with the devil, and had come off victorious, and most of us know what sort of intellectual and moral strength that requires. Christ was strong, but he was refined and sweet. Munkacsky's picture is a caricature in the milk-and-water Christ that has preceded it, but it is neither noble nor adequate. It is a skepticism.

A Speculation in Egg Futures.

(Chicago Tribune.)
 "Can we get a half dozen eggs of you?" Briar asked of a woman—a we stopped in front of a Western Kansas house.

"Well, no, you can't get that many just this minute," she replied, as she took off her sun bonnet and held it in her hand, "cause there ain't but five in the house, but you jes' hold on a little while."

"D'you see that big yellin' hen with her comb all froze out by the coop? Well, she's been singin' 'round kinder 'Go-uck, go-uck, go-uck' all the while."

"I ain't all the while," she replied, "like, an' that means that inside o' half a hour she will come out a nest an' lay a big brown egg. I've watched that hen for six year now, an' she never fails to come out with a egg."

"I'll be worth your while to wait, 'cause jes' like'n it'll be a double-yolker!"

"Go There Just the Same."

United States Senator Sawyer of Wisconsin, is one of the ways of the most august assembly in the Republic. He relates that soon after Mr. Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency, in 1860 it became known that Lincoln, that David Davis was really responsible for the event which subsequently became so big with political results.

When Davis and Lincoln next met, the latter said he had heard that Davis had done the deed, and asked him to explain. Davis said he was really responsible for the event which subsequently became so big with political results.

Two Arizona Train-Robbers Nabbed.

One of the Pair Makes a Confession of the Gang's Crimes.

A Witness Against Dr. Bowers Exonerates Him and Suicides.

Stories from the East of Suspected Plot in the Case of a Missing Los Angeles Man—Cardinal Gibbons Starts South—Etc.

By Telegram to The Times.

GAINESVILLE (Tex.), Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.] Last night Deputy United States Marshal Gertin and City Marshal Housout of this city arrested two men, George Green and Joseph Smith, in a gambling room in this city on charge of being participants in the late train robbery on the Southern Pacific Railroad near Tucson, Ariz. They were kept in jail for the remainder of the night, and were taken to Dallas for a hearing before the United States Commissioner. Green and Smith have been here for a short time and have been regarded as professional gamblers. As soon as his arrest was effected Green weakened, and without any solicitation on the part of the officers, made a clean breast of the whole affair. He stated that he belonged to the Arizona gang and knew well all who were nearest and that he was present and assisted in the big robbery.

STOLEN SPECIMENS.

Some Rich Stealings from a Mine Recovered.

NEVADA CITY, Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.] Six barley sacks of quartz specimens that had been stolen from the Delhi mine, at Columbia Hill, were recovered yesterday. A couple of men who had been working in the mine were seen loading the sacks into a wagon from a hiding place not far from the mine. They became frightened and fled, leaving the specimens behind, which were subsequently hauled back to the mine and found to be worth about $3000. One large specimen contained $500. It is supposed that the men had been accumulating specimens by stealing them from the mine.

ANOTHER MISSING MAN.

Disappearance of a Prominent Anglo-Ireland-Pool Player Feared.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.] George W. Bonham, a former well-known business man of this city, who for more than a year past, has been engaged in business on the Pacific Coast, and more recently in Los Angeles, where he was connected with the Los Angeles Land Company, is supposed by his friends here to have met with foul play, or to have made away with himself. Some weeks ago news was sent him of the accidental death of a favorite daughter, since which time nothing has been heard of him, and his friends here are asking information in regard to his whereabouts, and requesting that inquiries be made at Sierra Madre, where he is supposed to be, but could obtain no information of Bonham, and answered the telegrams accordingly.—[Ed. Times.]

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

The Prelate Starts on His Trip to the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.] The most imposing of the many demonstrations which have been held by the Catholics of San Francisco in honor of Cardinal Gibbons' visit to the Pacific Coast, was that which took place today in front of St. Mary's Cathedral. At the conclusion of the grand ceremonies in the church the enormous congregation assembled on the sidewalks and street outside the edifice to witness a review by the Cardinal of the branches of the Catholic hierarchy en route to the land to attend the ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new St. Mary's College at San Francisco.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the parade the procession marched down the street to the ferry landing, where the Prelate embarked for Oakland to participate in the ceremonies there. There were between 600 and 700 members in line. The procession was led by the Cardinal, followed by the various branches of the hierarchy, and then, by easy stages, continued his journey to his home in Baltimore.

DR. BOWEN'S CASE.

His Dead Wife's Brother Exonerates Him and Suicides.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—[By the Associated Press.] The dead body of Henry Benhayon, who has been employed with Dr. F. Schwartzschild, a dentist, was found at his lodgings on Geary street this afternoon. Several bottles of poison stood on a table in the room, from at least one of which Benhayon is supposed to have taken the fatal dose. Benhayon is specially known as the brother of Mrs. Cecilia Bowers, late wife of Dr. Milton Bowers, who was convicted of murder on the charge of having killed his wife for her life insurance money in August, 1885. Benhayon was one of the most important witnesses in this murder case.

Three letters were left by Benhayon addressed respectively to the Chronicle, to J. Milton Bowers and to the Corner. The letter to Bowers besmirched the name of his (Benhayon's) sister. The one to the Chronicle was an advertisement for a blank book that had been lost by the writer. The letter to the Corner has not yet been made public, but it is indirectly learned from one who has read the letter that it relieves Dr. Bowers of the responsibility of Mrs. Bowers' death, and places it on the shoulders of Benhayon himself. These disclosures have caused much comment here. Bowers is now in the County Jail awaiting sentence for the alleged murder of his wife, the sentence so far being withheld pending an appeal to the higher court.

A SACRILEGIOUS MOB.

English Rioters Enter Westminster Abbey and Hoot at the Officiating Pastor—Other Foreign News.

By Telegram to The Times.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Several thousand of the unemployed, with a red flag at their head, marched in procession this afternoon from Trafalgar Square to Westminster Abbey, and although no invitation had been extended, 1300 of the crowd were admitted. Inside the Abbey many of the unexpected visitors remained covered and indulged in whistling, while others mounted pedestals of the various statues or mingled with the decent people present. Most of the latter left the building.

The crowd, as a rule, chewed tobacco and expectorated everywhere, regardless of surroundings, until the first lesson was announced, when the reader was loudly jeered. The second lesson was similarly received. Canon Prothero then preached the sermon. In his discourse he argued that the punishment of law-breakers was necessary for the good of the community. This was received with cries of "Oh, oh," and "Bosh." The preacher earnestly appealed for order, and exhorted his hearers to try and improve evil and plant good instead. "That's what we are going to do," was shouted, and received with cries of "Bosh."

Canon Prothero now threw his notes aside and addressed himself directly to the rioters. He said: "Legislation could not at once provide a remedy for human sufferings, but everybody could express sympathy." Loud laughter was followed by cries of "Bosh."

Canon Prothero continued: "Charitable agencies might do much." (A voice, "We don't want charity; we want work.") The crowd of his close, and the mob blushed and marched out of the abbey. The whole band then proceeded shouting and hooting to Trafalgar Square, where they denounced church and police. Several arrests were made.

NOTES.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Gladstone was sufficiently improved to be able to attend church today.

Sir Gordon, brother of the late Gen. Gordon, is dead.

Why Really Good Plays Are Scarce.

"Often wonder," said a constant theatre-goer, "at the small number of good plays which have been produced during the last decade. I have read all the announcements for this season and I don't believe that there is a good play among them. Two or three hits have been made, but they are all dramatized versions of successful novels."

"To what cause do you attribute the lack of good playwrights?"

"There is not a sufficient demand for them. The law of supply and demand is pretty regular. The people of the present day want to be amused, and they will endure any kind of trash if it only gives a comedian a chance to be funny. If we desired heavy tragedies we would soon have them. The fault lies with the public and not with the authors."

On a Steep Stair.

"Let's see," said a woman who was inspecting an empty house in the eastern part of the city with a view to rent, "haven't several of your tenants died in the bow?"

"Only two, madam."

"And they died of typhoid fever, I hear, caused by the drainage being so bad."

"Typhoid fever! Some one is trying to injure me, madam. They both fell down stairs and killed themselves."

"That's singular."

"O, no, madam. You see, they stood at the head of the stairs when I lowered the rent to $12 per month, and the sudden shock overbalanced 'em."

SOVEREIGN WOMAN AT A BANK.

How she Presents a Check and How she Indorses It.

(Duffalo Courier.)

A gentle, lovely woman entered a bank street bank. She wanted a check cashed, so she went to the receiving teller's window and thrust the check in. The teller showed it back.

"Next window," he said.

"Next window?" she said. "I can't wait till next window," she said. "I can't wait till next window," she said. "I can't wait till next window," she said.

"Ob, yes, but this is the receiving window, isn't it?"

"Yes, but you can't get any money here."

"But I'm going to receive it, ain't I?"

"Not here you ain't; go to the other window, lady; he'll fix you."

The lady was still uncertain, but she went and showed in her check. The teller official thrust it back. "It's not indorsed, madam," said he.

"Not indorsed; what does that mean?"

"Is your name Tucker?"

"That's it, and I praps it ain't. What business is that o' yours?"

"Is this your name on the face of this check?"

"Yes, it is."

"Well, you've got to indorse it."

"That's what you said before. What do you mean?"

"You must write your name across the back of it."

"But my name's on it already."

"On the front. That ain't enough; it must be across the back."

"Oh, well, g'm'e it." She took it and carefully wrote her name upside down across the bottom of the check and handed it in.

"You indorsed it wrong, madam."

"How'd I know how you wanted it? Why didn't you tell me?"

"I thought I did. Here, write it across the top, so, 'I' and the teller painfully showed her; and, with much grudging, she complied. The teller thereupon cashed her check with two silver dollars.

"Ain't going to take those," she said. "G'm'e bills."

The teller sighed and gave her two one-dollar bills, whereupon she picked up her parcel and departed.

...the great discovery of the truth about Shakespeare's tomb. The poor attempts of Donnelly, Black and Clark, as foreshadowed in the world, pale into insignificance. How they can have overlooked anything so simple, obvious and indisputable passes my comprehension. At last, thanks to me, all is known! The controversy of a generation is ended! Shakespeare is no one, Bacon is every one! But I will not keep you longer waiting. To make everything clear I must ask you to reprint the famous inscription on Shakespeare's tomb:

Good friend for Jesus sake Forbear
To digt a Dust enclosed here
These be the man—saves 1—no stones
And curst be He—saves my bones.

The exquisite poetry of this at once proclaims it to be Bacon's, and the bad spelling was all done on purpose. I will show you one instance in proof of this. The others I can explain, but I am compelled to keep back something for my forthcoming book on the subject.

Take the fifth word of the first line and the sixth word of the third line and the result is

SHAKE SPARES.

We want an L. To call attention to this and supply the want the author puts a superfluous h in the fifth word of the second line, "enclosed." Put this after our first letter and we have

SHAKE SPARES.

Now take the letter a, which we must have reduced from moving it on; the two first letters, fr, of the second word of the first line; the second letter, a, of the fifth word, same line; the fourth letter, u, of the fourth word, same line, and the fourth letter, d, of the first word, same line. The astounding result is:

SHAKESPEARE'S X FRAUD.

All these letters are chosen strictly in accordance with cipher rules as laid down by Bacon. The epitaph contains a complete history of the lives of both Shakespeare and Bacon. I cannot now send you more, as I must get on with my book; but this will prove I am on the right track and establish my claim to priority of discovery.

THE CELESTIAL AND THE EARTH.

A Little Conflict of Nationalities in (San Francisco Chronicle)

The procession of the dragon and the mighty Joss of the Yeong Wo Company caused all work to be suspended for a week in Wong Fat's wash house. The boss was resting himself at the door yesterday, after playing the part of the sixty-fifth leg of the dragon, when Mr. Maloney arrived with an invoice of underwear that needed more than a speaking acquaintance with the washbowl.

"You see him dragon—Oh, velly fine, velly fine," remarked the laundryman, Mr. Maloney nodded but answered not.

"Cost Chinaman heap money—one, two, twenty thousand dollar. Oh, no! cost million. Oh, no! me tink two million. Nobody catch him show like Chinaman. Melician man show no good; Hishman show too much talk—no big dragon—no gong, allee bum-bum-bum music; bum-bum-bum man."

Mr. Maloney glared in speechless astonishment at the boastful Mongolian. "Holy St. Patrick!" he gasped, as soon as he found his voice, "am I shraming—am I awake? Have I lived to hear a fish-eyed haythen from Hong Kong set himself up as the equal of a white man in this free country?"

"Chinaman boss," remarked Wong Fat with exasperating calmness. "Mr. Maloney writhed for several minutes in a paroxysm."

"Do you mean to assert," he demanded, his voice hoarse with patriotic rage, "that you think, because you had a couple of pasteboard dragons, that cost a few hundred dollars, and a dozen av young haythens painted as fairies, that you're going to sit yourselves up as a model in this country?"

"Chinaman boss," remarked Wong Fat.

"Chinaman be—" roared the exasperated patriot, "why, you adde-headed apology for a washing man, I could show you more snakes, dragons and imps of the devil in Ireland for the price of three glasses of Cork whiskey than you could manufacture in China from now to doomsday."

So saying, the justly enraged citizen seized his bundle of washing and took his trade away at top speed, carrying a section of the door-panel with him in his excitement.

The Old Mission Tells a Tale.

The old citizens of Burbank will not mistake when they established their missions. Having the whole country to select from, they invariably chose wisely. Go to Forter Land and Water Company's office and be sent by buggy to the train and then to San Fernando and return, free, and you will be convinced. Office, Los Angeles National Bank building, First and Spring streets.

No Discount.

The citizens of Burbank will soon have a paper of their own. With the opening of the Burbank Villa Hotel, publishing a paper, and two dummy railroads, making 28 trains daily, we fail to see where Burbank can be discounted in Los Angeles county.

Bids will be received at the office of the Los Angeles and Raymond Railroad Company, 181 North Main street, for grading and laying track up to November 1st, at 10 o'clock a.m. For plans and specifications call at above office. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Ralph Rogers.

JW BOWEN & CO.

THE UBIQUITOUS JEW.

ADAPTABILITY TO ALL CLIMATES AND CONDITIONS.

As Home wherever He Ranges His Hat—legally Contented in the Orient as in the Occident—The Universal Jew.

[Jewish World.]

It has been frequently remarked that the Jewish race has a wonderful power of adaptation to all climates. Jews are found in all parts of the globe, only in some of them in remarkable facility of assimilation, even under the most unfavorable circumstances. Mesopotamia is considered the mother country of the Abrahamic family, as well as the cradle of the human race. Some years ago a small colony of Jews were found in the ancient city of Sennar, in the south of Mesopotamia, and in the vicinity of ancient Babylon. The Jewish origin of the city of Sennar, one claimed to be descended from King Joachim, the rest from the house of Levi. A colony of Jews appear to have settled in China about the beginning of the third century of the Christian era, under the dynasty of Han. In 1704, Father Gonzales, a Roman Catholic missionary, found seven Jewish families near Peking.

In 1695 a Portuguese Jew of Amsterdam, named De Paria, discovered a town of Jews in Coochin China. According to a tradition preserved among them, they were descended from a tribe of Jews who had quitted Palestine on the destruction of the second temple. From their long residence in Coochin they had become completely bronzed. These are not the same as the Malabar Jews. The Jewish traveler Benjamin, sometimes called Benjamin II, discovered a colony of Jews, evidently of Persian origin, in Hindoostan. They were known as "Babylonian Jews," on account of their having migrated from Babylonia. They observed the essential rites of Judaism, and strictly avoided intermarriage with other sects. In the beginning of the seventeenth century a Jewish colony settled in Cayenne, in the West Indies, one of the most inhospitable climates in South America.

Cayenne was subsequently conquered by the French, who made it a penal settlement, and the Jewish colony was forced to retire to Surinam. Notwithstanding the frequent persecutions, Jews are still found in Persia, more especially to the south of the Caspian Sea, where the soil is very fertile but the climate very unhealthy. The principal city is Balpoor, where about 150 Jewish families reside in almost complete isolation. They trade with their brethren in Great Tartary, and are engaged in the wool and silk trade or in the sale of citrons. They, too, trace their origin from the Babylonian captivity, for according to a tradition still possessed among them, their ancestors settled in Persia and in the time of Nebuchadnezzar, and did not respond to the appeal of Ezra to return to Palestine. Their mode of life resembles that of the Persians in general. They hold the beard in high esteem, and wear long, flowing robes. They have several synagogues, and obtain scrolls of the law from Bagdad. The celebrated African traveler, Mungo Park, found a colony of Jewish families in the heart of Africa, about 600 miles from the coast. It is no doubt the peculiarity of the Jewish race which induced a French writer on "Medical Geography" to express the opinion that: "It is questionable whether the crossing of human varieties confers on the issue constant advantages in relation to the species; for the Jewish race seems in a wonderful manner capable of adapting itself to every change of climate, while others are scarcely able to bear the least change."

The Jew is found in every part of the world; in Europe, from Norway to Gibraltar; in Africa, from Algiers to the Cape of Good Hope; in Asia, from Coochin to the Ganges; from Java to Peking. He has peopled Australia, and has given proofs of his powers of acclimation under the tropics, where people of European origin have consistently failed to perpetuate themselves.

Prod Grant's Pretty Wife.

In invoking his wife in his canvass for Secretary of State, Col. Grant displays a degree of sense that does him infinite credit. He has little natural aptitude for politics. He must have been forgotten when gifts of oratory were parcelled out for his most awkward days. Gen. Grant was a Chicago compared with the son. Nor has the Colonel been rubbed up against the world and thus acquired the experience with men of affairs that his father had before assuming public functions. Except in name and the cut of his beard, he has not yet developed any resemblance to the old commander. But he has not been blind to the advantages that beautiful wives have secured to aspirants of public office, and he seems to have set out to stake his game on that card.

No man could ask for better equipment than he has for that purpose. Mrs. Grant is a wonderfully beautiful woman. She was of the Honorable family of Chicago. Her sister, also a woman of beauty, is the wife of Potter Palmer, owner of the Palmer House. Mrs. Grant shows her French extraction in her native and graceful manners, as well as in her features, in which she has the distinctive combination of black hair and lustrous blue eyes and well-modeled rosy lips, which disclose in part a handsome set of teeth. She is a born entertainer, possessing the faculty of drawing from her guests the best that is in them and sending them away delighted with themselves and with her.

It is quite safe to say that she will make as favorable an impression everywhere as she has in her first tour. Col. Grant shall accomplish the uphill task before him of election as Secretary of State, the honor of the achievement will be due to the conquests of his charming wife.

Heaven's Last, Best Gift.

(Buckeye in Brooklyn Eagle.) The Boston Globe has something to say about a "female equestrienne." American women, we may remark in passing, are as a rule better equestriennes than foreign women, although that they do some tall walking on their shopping excursions is beyond question. Still, while she may shine more brightly as a rider than as a walkwoman, let us never forget how much we owe to womanhood as a courtesan, a sister, a wife, and so let us always endeavor to indicate her sex so plainly that there may be no mistake.

Invest in PALM SPRINGS, where there is no frost, no fog, no heavy winds. The home of the banana, date and orange. Only spot in California where frost, fog and wind-storms are absolutely unknown. The earliest season in the State. Best opportunity for men of moderate means. Every fruit and vegetable matures a month to six weeks earlier than anywhere else on the coast. In a sheltered spot at the base of the San Jacinto Mountains lies Palm Valley, famous all over the southern part of the State as being the location of the Arroyo Caliente Springs, whose waters are an absolute specific for rheumatism and a host of other diseases. The soil of the valley is remarkably fertile, and it has been demonstrated that every fruit and vegetable will mature in this favored spot a month or more in advance of any other place. There is a

MAGNIFICENT WATER SUPPLY,

Derived from the Whitewater River and other sources, and a fine canal has just been completed, some eight miles in length and stone-lined, which conveys at all times an abundance of water.
